“ Unfortunately, I did not know your dad. My husband David Ford was a manager of Red Stick Linen, which was merged with Cintas Corporation. David died in March of this year, and I have been going through his office. After he retired from Cintas he taught as a clinical professor in the business school at the University of Alabama. In some of his boxes of information, I found a Merger Mania book and illustration that I believe was drawn by James C. Carpenter. This could have been from the late 1980's. If you are interested, I would be glad to mail this to you. I am very sorry for your loss. I am also grieving. David and I were married 43 years. Wishing you comforting memories.

Sincerely,

Linda Ford

“ Jill and family, please accept our deepest condolences. We will surely miss your dad's smiling face! He was always so happy to see us, so quick with a hug and handshake. He was truly one of the good guys!

This is my favorite quote, it holds a lot of truth:

Death leaves a heartache no one can heal, love leaves a memory no one can steal.

“ My deepest sympathy to Jim's whole family but am directing my personal message to Lynne & Joan - the rest of the family would not know me - I am the last of the Bash clan that lived down the road from your family - we were childhood friends - Jim was the baby but he was always such a cute kid and if my memory serves me well, he and my brother Stan were pretty good friends. I know how difficult it is to lose a sibling - my thoughts and prayers are with you at this very sad time. Grief is not easy but time does heal - we never forget but it takes time to heal. God Bless all of you. Joyce (Bash) McMullen.

“ I worked with "Carp" from 1981 to the day he retired. Always, always pleasant. He was outgoing and friendly with a quite soul. He will be greatly missed. Comforting to know he and his wife are holding hands forever.
